STUDENTS NEED PLANNERS NOW MORE THAN EVER.

3 Reasons Why Keeping a Physical Planner Has Never Been More Important

After a year unlike any other, schools did an astounding job transitioning to the new normal.

The change from in-person learning to online learning may have been hard for some students to grasp, but one consistent tool that kept them organized throughout the year was their planner.

Because of this, paper planners continue to be important in increasing focus, memory, and efficient planning while also lowering distractions and student failure rates.

Planning in digital spaces can negatively impact students' ability to learn valuable time-management skills that are necessary in college, the workplace, and adulthood.

1. TIME MANAGEMENT

Handwriting forces the brain to focus and leads to success

Advanced time-management skills are critical for students to develop at an early age. However, there's much more involved in time management than making an appointment on a laptop, and a physical planner is the perfect solution.

- Written sections demand that students process the information in their schedules.
- Focused writing spaces teach effective planning strategies using active brain processes.
- Daily comment sections foster communication among students, teachers, and parents.

2. HEIGHTENED MEMORY

Physical planners combat digital glitches and forgetfulness

Studies show handwritten notes improve memory and student success, and planning is no exception.

- Handwritten daily planning sections increase recollection of assignments, reducing failure.
- Physical planners bypass computer glitches and student excuses for missing assignments.
- Goals and notes spaces teach students responsibility while also encouraging creativity.

3. FEWER DISTRACTIONS

Physical planners keep focus on tasks at hand

Finally, a hard-copy planner helps students focus on their schedules and mitigate distractions from their digital devices.

- Tangible planners remove notifications and pop-ups that interrupt students' focus.
- Regularly recording written tasks helps students become independent of their devices.

School events on the day so your students can plan ahead. And there is still plenty of space to keep track of all assignments and extracurricular activities!

The planners are wonderful! They came in before the expected date, are very cute (very important to 13 year olds at an all-girls school!), and have held up well so far.

The LANDSCAPE encourages organization by keeping events and daily planning separated. Featuring weekly horizontal photos drives home school spirit, and makes their school year more personal.
